In 2006 I was invited to a festival in Lima by the actresses of the Yuyachkani theatre group. One day they took all the guests to the memorial monument El ojo que llora (The eye that cries) by Lika Mutal, a labyrinth leading to a stone sculpture at the centre. As I entered the labyrinth, I looked down: beside the track there were thousands of stones laid in order, one for each victim of the war that had lasted for twenty years between the Peruvian army and Sendero Luminoso. Some of the stones disclosed the name and date of birth and of disappearance or death of a person. Looking down and remembering all the other wars and massacres, I was seized by anguish and a sense of impotence. Searching for comfort, I looked for a long time at the sculpture washed by a continuous ripple of water representing the tears of the Pachamama (Mother Earth). Then I walked all the way back. The stones were in the opposite direction and I could no longer read the inscriptions. Automatically I raised my eyes and head, and my erect body regained energy. The simple obligation of placing one foot in front of the other changed my attitude. I understood then that what we can and must do is to keep on walking. The action of walking decides and where we look determines the direction and the spirit of where we are going.

Today, in a time when government leaders and the people who have elected them no longer seem to acknowledge the simple basic value of human rights, I desperately need to be accompanied by hope. Not the hope that sits back waiting for something to happen, nor the hope as a form of prayer to others, but the active determination to transmit a message of energy through the practice of my craft, theatre. A craft based on the know-how of creating relationships.

The last two Transit festivals were permeated by themes of violence against women and the possible ways of reacting. The choice of Hope in Action - Theatre, Women, Will as a theme for the 9th Transit comes from a need to move on. I use “will” in the double meaning of resolution and legacy. Without forgetting the necessity and responsibility of denouncing and reacting, I wish to regain confidence in a communication that refuses idle words and passes through body contact, self-assurance, love, spirit of adventure and belief in the future. The older I get, the more experience I have, the more AI, algorithms and robots take over the human capacity of having feelings and intelligence, the more I need beauty, poetry, song, music, children, movement and nature. Nature has a power of being that I would like to give to my actions in theatre. Nature transmits messages of energy and life, and is an inspiration for my work.

Every time I am confronted with despair and sickness, misery and rage, my advice has been to take time to breathe, go for a walk, be out in nature, by the sea or in the woods, where nothing is mechanic, orderly, symmetric, boring, and everything is changing all the time. The horizon can be cloudy, but the distance and space give a sense of proportion and longing. Preparing the image for the festival, Dorthe Kærgaard reminded me of a Danish saying, “you should not sit inside, when all hope is out”. Many women have been invited to Transit 9 Festival to contribute with their experience regarding its theme through performances, work demonstrations, workshops and talks. The programme wants to take the women ‘out’ to be nourished, energised and inspired, enhancing a sense of hope for the future of our craft and of this world, and the belief that in a time of crisis, disillusionment, corruption, autocracy and war, the voice of women can contribute an alternative point of view. This requires engagement and responsibility. Of course, inside or outside, struggling in despair or singing with joy, screaming out loud or in a persistent silence, we have to do our work well. It is the only weapon at our disposal.

Theatre is a shared space for reflection, and it can also be a time for hope in action.

Julia Varley
Transit 9 is dedicated to

Lika Mutal
(1939 - 2016)

Lika Mutal once gave me a small sculpture as a present while I was on tour in Peru. She wanted to thank me for a performance. It was a stone moulded by the water of a river. It seemed soft and had waves that marked the passing of time. I love to hold this stone. When I heard Lika had died, I decided to dedicate Transit 9 Festival to her, because she teaches me what hope in action means every time I have visit her monument El ojo que llora in Lima.

Julia Varley

Lika Mutal was born in The Netherlands in 1939. She moved to Colombia in 1964 and then to Perú in 1968. Her career as a sculptor began in 1971, after meeting a well-known stone smith, Don Juan Arias. Some of her work was inspired by the quipus, a pre-Colombian tool used for recording and mathematics which has never been deciphered. In 1983, Lika was invited to become part of the Nahra Haime Gallery in New York. She has exhibited extensively and her work is in impressive collections such as Centre Georges Pompidou - Musée National d’Art Moderne, Paris, France; City of Lima, Peru; City of Utrecht, The Netherlands; Nike Building Terrace, Queen’s Square, Yokohama, Japan; Organization of American States, Washington, D.C. (1990-1994); Grand Cypress Resort, Orlando, FL, among others. Lika has also been awarded the Royal Ueno Museum Prize in 1994, and an Excellent Maquette Prize, in 1992, from the Fujisanki Biennale founded in Japan, as well as the First Sculpture Prize from the Universidad Católica in 1970. Lika was awarded the Jose Maria Arguedas Prize for her work El ojo que llora, located on permanent display in Campo de Marte, in Lima, Perú. She had been commissioned to make a piece of public art in order to commemorate the loss of life as a result of the war between the Peruvian army and Sendero Luminoso that took place in 1980-2000.
Transit is an international theatre festival and meeting organised at Odin Teatret, Holstebro, Denmark and directed by Julia Varley, one of the founders of The Magdalena Project, a network of women in contemporary theatre that exists since 1986, directed and initiated by Jill Greenhalgh. The aims of The Magdalena Project include enabling women to produce work that more profoundly reflects their own experience and creating a forum for women’s work in theatre to be seen. In its 26 years of existence the network has connected women and developed activities all over the world. Festivals in Norway in 1989, Cardiff in 1994, New Zealand in 1999, Australia and Colombia in 2003 could be mentioned as visible and impressive examples together with the books by Susan Bassnett, by Chris Fry, the 13 issues of The Open Page, and the books Legacy and Challenge – Magdalena@25, Future Conditional - Notes for Tomorrow and Raising Hope - An Anthology of Women in Theatre.

In Denmark Julia Varley and Odin Teatret have actively collaborated with The Magdalena Project in various ways. In 1995 the first Transit Festival took place is an occasion for meeting and exchange.

Else Marie Laukvik

In a sitting room, sit a storyteller and a strolling musician. The woman speaks as though she were telling fairy tales: two true stories. They concern children, witnesses’ accounts from the Nazi extermination camps, but which end happily accompanied by Hebrew and Yiddish songs.

The storyteller slips from one sentence to the next, from one episode to another, mixes up people, forgets the words and finds them again, connects lives and events that do not belong together. Something essential is getting lost: not memory, but the strength and the words capable of transmitting it without succumbing.

The performance ends as we look at the photographs of two writers’ faces: a smiling Primo Levi and a melancholic Jean Améry, both Jews who had survived Auschwitz and committed suicide years later. “Only two of us are left and we deal in bones.”

Odin Teatret was created in Oslo, Norway, in 1964, and moved to Holstebro, Denmark, in 1966. The Laboratory’s activities include: Odin’s own productions presented on site and on tour in Denmark and abroad; the annual Odin Week Festival; publication of magazines and books; production of didactic films and videos; research into theatre and anthropology during the sessions of ISTA (International School of Theatre Anthropology); performances with the performed in 66 countries and different social contexts.

Since 2009 Odin Teatret and Nordisk Teaterlaboratorium have been developing as two complementary and autonomous environments, with different fields of action and collaborations. Odin Teatret includes all the activities of the Odin actors directed by Eugenio Barba. Nordisk Teaterlaboratorium comprises permanent and intermittent residences, co-productions, workshops and transformances with groups and single artists who are independent from Odin Teatret, such as SCD (Scena Occidentale Orientale), The Masakini Theatre, Kaja, Anna Stengaard, Vi Ja Iikonen, Cross Pollination, Riotous Company, Kompanito, Deborah Hunt, and others.

ODIN TEATRET
(Denmark)
A professional biography

Actor and director: Else Marie Laukvik
Duration: 90 min. - Performed in English

Else Marie writes: “I am now in my seventies and I feel it is time for me to look back in time. Creativity is like a continuous act of giving birth and all the figures that I have given life to in the theatre are my stage children that I would like to encounter and revive once more.”

Else Marie Laukvik was one of the founders of Odin Teatret with Eugenio Barba. In 1966, Else Marie followed the group to Holstebro, Denmark. Her experiences as an actor are published in The Actor’s Way, edited by Erik Eke Christoffersen. At the same time as she was performing with Odin Teatret, Else Marie worked as director for Teatret Marquez (Denmark), Munin Teatret (Denmark), Teatro Actores Alidos (Italy), Rojo Teatro (Italy), Associazione Culturale Teatro dell’Albero (Italy), Kabaret Wagon (Denmark), Mia B Max (UK). As an actress Else Marie has also collaborated with Teatro Tascabile di Bergamo (Italy) in 1996. Else Marie is currently working on a new production on Francisco Goya.

Frans Winther is a composer and musician who studied at the Nordjysk Music Conservatory. He joined Odin Teatret in 1987 where he performs as musician and composes/arranges music for its performances and other activities. He has created two operas, Shakuntala (his own libretto based on Kalidasa’s play) and EZRA (libretto by Peter Laugesen based on Ezra Pound’s life and poems). Frans has initiated the monthly poetry evenings in Holstebro, The Omar Kayyám Evenings.

WHITE AS JASMINE

12 June - 14:30

An actor’s concert

Actor and director: Iben Nagel Rasmussen
Duration: 50 min. - Performed in English and Danish

The actress Iben Nagel Rasmussen evokes Odin Teatret’s performances from 1966 until the present day. She illustrates the changes her voice has undergone, from the closed room (which allows the actors to reveal their inner world) and the street performances (the meeting with the exterior world) to the space which words create through their meanings and sounds.

ITSI BITSI

14 June - 19:45

Actors: Iben Nagel Rasmussen, Jan Ferslev, Kai Bredholt
Music arrangement: Jan Ferslev, Kai Bredholt
Text montage and director: Eugenio Barba
Duration: 60 min. - Performed in Danish

Dedicated to Eik Skaløe

Iben Nagel Rasmussen tells of the years preceding her arrival at Odin Teatret, years of hitchhiking round the world, of music and poetry, of political radicalism and drugs. It is her story and that of Eik Skaløe (the first beat poet to sing in Danish, who committed suicide in India in 1968) and of their generation.

Some fragments of the actress’s previous performances are interwoven, not as quotations and examples, but as revealing metaphors: the mute Kattrin from Brecht’s Ashes, the wandering shaman from Camel And the Day Will Be Ours, the Trickster from Talabot.
Iben Nagel Rasmussen writes: "When, in 2003, my mother Ester was moved to a residential care home at the age of 85 already suffering from senile dementia, I decided to complete the performance which for some time had existed as an idea and a draft - a story of her life. In a comfortable but unfamiliar room in a residential care home, mother and daughter sit and talk. With a stubbornness bordering on the tragicomic, the same words and terms are constantly repeated. The dialogue reawakens past experiences, unrealised dreams and plans for the future, which only exists in a world of fantasy. Physical activity is minimal but a diary from the end of the Second World War, a photo album and private film clips from half a century ago reveal different layers of Ester's life. Music and songs from a distant youth accompany pictures and texts, bringing closer historical changes which shook and marked her generation. The story of my mother is also a reflection on becoming old in present day Denmark, about loneliness and separation. Nobody is born old. It has been my wish to give voice to some of the fragments of my mother's life which would otherwise have been buried with her. I am Ester's Book."

Actor and director: Iben Nagel Rasmussen
Musician: Uta Motz
Text and idea: Iben Nagel Rasmussen
Musical arrangement: Uta Motz and Anna Stigsgaard
Film montage: Torgeir Wethal
Stage consultancy: Knud Erik Knudsen
Stage advisory: Eugenio Barba
Duration: 60 min. - Performed in English

Iben Nagel Rasmussen is an actor, director, teacher and writer, born in 1945 in Denmark. She was the first actor to join Odin Teatret after its arrival in Holstebro in 1966. In 1983 she founded, parallel with her work at Odin Teatret, the group Farfa with actors from various countries. Since 1989 she has led The Bridge of Winds, and since 1999 New Winds. Her professional experiences are presented in The Actor’s Way edited by Erik Exe Christoffersen and in the video documentary The Transparent Body edited by Claudio Coloberti. She has written three books: Brev til en veninde, Den blinde hest, Det fjerde dør.

Uta Motz has worked as a freelance musician and actor for 25 years after graduating at the Hochschule für Musik og Darstellende Kunst in Stuttgart, Germany. Uta has collaborated with several theatres in Denmark and abroad. Since 2011 Uta plays with Anders Allentoft in The Duo Chanson.

Kai Bredholt joined Odin Teatret in 1990, first as a musician/composer, latter as an actor and organiser/director of barters and transformances. Kai has created particular circus performances which present actors, pets, farmers with their animals, ballet dancers on tractors and much more.

Jan Ferslev see page 21
A female odyssey: a woman travels from one Mediterranean island to another in search of a loved one who has disappeared. A phantom accompanies her in a dance which brings her closer to an awareness of a definitive absence. Based on the short story Letter in the Wind from Sì sta facendo sempre più tardi (It is getting later and later), a novel in the form of letters by Antonio Tabucchi.

A white deck chair, a large fan, a bonsai, combs of mother-of-pearl, a decapitated head carved out of wood, long hat pins to pierce its eyes and tongue and for adorning the hair, a red dressing gown, a white silk nightdress. Through the justification of the biblical story of Judith, the performance explores the theme of violence and vulnerability, plunging into an ocean of luminous and murderous eroticism.
Every performance tells a story. The characters belonging to the world of fiction become credible reality for the spectator thanks to the actor’s technique. In Traces in the Snow the technique itself becomes the protagonist. The actress carries on a dialogue with the secrets which precede and follow the building of a character and the creation of a performance.

Robert careeri is an actor, teacher, writer and organizer. She joined Odin Teatret in 1974 during the group’s stay in Caprignano, Italy and has since worked as an actress with the group in most of the group’s productions, in solo performances and four work demonstrations. Roberta Carreri has taken part in ISTA (International School of Theatre Anthropology) since its beginning in 1980. She gives workshops for actors all over the world and organizes and leads the annual international workshop Odin Week Festival in Holstebro and abroad. In 2009 she directed Rumb with Ciara Caramasic, in 2014 The Woman Who Spat Out the Apple with Rosia Antuña, and in 2017 Nido Vacío with Giulia Varotto and Carolina Pizarro. Roberta Carreri has written her own book Tracce, in which she relives the most relevant aspects of her theatre life. Her articles have been published in journals such as New Theatre Quarterly, Teatro e Storia,掩マスク, The Open Page, Peripeti and Performance Research.

Jan Ferslev is a musician, composer, actor and teacher. His background includes rock, jazz, Latin and classical music. As a guitar player he has participated in various recordings and composed music for different forms of theatre. He has worked as an actor in both traditional and group theatre before joining Odin Teatret in 1987. In his workshops, Jan concentrates on the stage presence of musicians and actors.
THE FLYING CARPET

Julia Varley

12 June - 12:00

A work demonstration

Actor and director: Julia Varley
Duration: 60 min. - Performed in English

“Text is a carpet that has to fly far away”: with this sentence as a starting point the demonstration works its way through thirty years of Odin Teatret’s performances. Few essential explanations accompany the vocal work that exemplifies the passage of the word from the written form to space, from coldness of paper to the freedom of interpretation.

DOÑA MUSICA’S BUTTERFLIES

Julia Varley

12 June - 20:00

Actor: Julia Varley
Text and stage design: Julia Varley
Musical arrangement: Jan Ferslev, Frans Winther
Lighting: Knud Erik Knudsen
Director: Eugenio Barba
Duration: 55 min. - Performed in English

Doña Musica’s Butterflies is a performance about identity which the protagonist defines as a tendency to exist. It is the story of a character who has escaped from a performance - Kaosmos - and tells of her origins and adventures in terms of entomology, through theories of modern physics.
THE ECHO OF SILENCE

13 June - 09:00

A work demonstration

Actor and director: Julia Varley
Duration: 70 min. - Performed in English

The Echo of Silence is a performance which describes the vicissitudes of the voice of an actor and the stratagems she invents to "interpret" a text. The actress creates a labyrinth of rules, references and resistance to follow or refuse so as to achieve a personal expression and recognise her own voice.

THE CASTLE OF HOLSTEBRO II

13 June - 21:00

Actor: Julia Varley
Text: Julia Varley and Eugenio Barba
Musical arrangement: Jan Ferslev
Lighting: Poul Østergaard, Knud Erik Knudsen
Costumes: Julia Varley, Ellen Skød
Director: Eugenio Barba
Duration: 50 min. - Performed in English

In a red room we see a woman dressed in white and a cynical old jester with a skull for a head called Mr Peanut. Two characters in one person: "If they see beard and moustache, they call it man. If they see long hair and breasts, they call it woman. But look! The soul inside is neither man nor woman."
The Dead Brother is an explanation of how performances are created at Odin Teatret. It presents the different phases of the process in which text, actor and director interact starting from poetic texts which finally become "poem in space": the performance. It shows how the actor creates her own stage presence until the final synthesis in which the text, through the form and precision of the actions, acquires a rhythm and density of meaning.

Julia Varley joined Odin Teatret in 1976. Apart from acting she is active in directing, teaching, organising and writing. Since 1990 she has been involved in the conception and organisation of ISTA (International School of Theatre Anthropology) and of the University of Eurasian Theatre, both directed by Eugenio Barba. Since its beginning in 1986 she has been active in The Magdalena Project. She has directed 22 performances with actors from different countries. Julia Varley has written Wind in the West - a novel by a theatre character; Notes of an Odin Actress - Stones of Water (published in Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, English, Chinese, Greek, Arab and French), and An actress and her characters - Submerged stories from Odin Teatret (published in Portuguese and Spanish).

These verses by the Italian poet Antonio Verri sum up the performance. Julia Varley evokes her meeting and friendship with the Chilean actress María Cánepa. Death itself celebrates the creative fantasy and dedication of Maria, who was able to leave a trace after her departure.
Ana Woolf is a teacher, actress and director, and co-founder of Magdalena 2a Generación, a Latin American Network of Women in Contemporary Arts. In 1999 Ana Woolf moved to Denmark to study with Julia Varley who directed her in two performances and a work demonstration. Ana lived in Europe for some years, also working as assistant director for Eugenio Barba. Ana returned to Argentina in 2011. She has developed a special training based on Asian techniques and Latin American rhythms, and leads workshops all around the world. As a director, she has worked with professional actors in different countries, and six of her productions are presently on tour. Ana has published articles in various theatre publications and has translated many of Odin Teatret's books into Spanish.

SEEDS OF MEMORY
13 June - 22:15

Actor: Ana Woolf
Text: Ana Woolf and extracts from historical documents
Director and dramaturgy: Julia Varley
Duration: 60 min. - Performed in English and Spanish

The performance is about absence: the absence of a father, the absence of a body to bury and the absence of 30,000 missing people in Argentina, during the last military dictatorship. But absence generates its opposite: resilience, presence and identity. Absence is the starting point to build a performance that contains both a personal message and political discourse. Although no words will ever be enough to compensate the horror and suffering which have touched many generations of Argentinians, the autobiographical words of a child and the real pain caused by the recent loss of her father become the dramaturgical solution which allows to tell the story of a Latin American country hit by a military dictatorship.
I am in the dark, until the moon shines and the night is white.

“I cannot speak. I don’t find the words. They say that the problem is in the amygdala, that the amygdala are closed from fear. But I don’t know. My body is hurting me; my soul is hurting me. It is as if the water inside an immense globe pushes the walls, threatens to explode but never does. So I stay here, immobile, silent, deafened; suffocated by the sali-va of my own words, which do not dare to leave my mouth. Stunned by the noise of my own silence. They say I have little birds in my mind.”

When something hurts so much we cannot speak about it, we desperately search for an escape. To set the ‘birds’ captured in our heads free, some people write poems, others attempt suicide, and others, create theatre performances.

I am in the dark, until the moon shines and the night is white.

“What is behind the curtains? The magic world of theatre and presence; the real world of obstinate daily training, so as to be able to say “I’m here and now” on stage; the actress on her feet, wearing the shoes of her characters. This work demonstration is an invitation to follow the years of training necessary to acquire a craft, meeting the actress’s different faces. It tells about the encounter with the actress’s teachers, touching upon topics like discipline and emotions during preparation and at the moment of facing the spectators. Fragments of performances visualise the all-mysterious moment of passage from technique to stage fiction.

I am in the dark, until the moon shines and the night is white.

Carolina Pizarro is an actor, director and teacher and has studied several physical and vocal techniques. Fundamental pillars for her research have been the meeting with Julia Varley, and her stay in the Hindustan Kalari Sangham Temple, where she developed her knowledge of Kalaryppayatu and Silambattam martial arts. Carolina joined Odin Teatret as an actor in October 2015, taking part in all the current ensemble performances. With Luis Alonso, Carolina directs the international project Ikarus, which has met at Odin Teatret in different occasions since 2017.

Carolina Pizarro (Chile)

14 June - 22:15

Actor: Carolina Pizarro
Director: Julia Varley
Duration: 50 min. - Performed in Spanish

The performance explores the concept of journey, travelling to a land rooted in the memories of a woman’s imagination: a land where the fire is kept alive as a sign that a home still exists.

During Salvador Allende’s government, a grand-mother and her daughter, holding a Chilean flag, occupied a plot of land to build a house and make a garden there. When the repression came, as a consequence of Augusto Pinochet’s military coup, the daughter dug a deep hole in the ground and buried her uniform, papers and everything that could possibly relate her to the Communist Party. Then, over all her memories, she planted a tree.

TIERRA DE FUEGO (LAND OF FIRE)

Dedicated to Rebeca Ghigliotto and María Cánepa

A journey is always good, because it ends, a journey is to and from, outside or at home, if it doesn’t end, it is something else, flight, exile, expulsion, steps that take nowhere…

(Pia Tafdrup)
A work demonstration
Actor: Carolina Pizarro
Director: Julia Varley
Duration: 60 min. - Performed in English and Spanish

During the demonstration Carolina Pizarro says: “The oriental kaki is an ancestral tree from Japan. If you take a 70 or 80-year-old tree, all its fruit, without exception, will be bitter. Only when the tree is more than 100 years old will the first sweet fruit start to ripen. What do humans do to get sweet fruit earlier? They go to an old tree and cut the sweet fruit’s branch to graft it onto a younger tree. Some trees will start to give sweet fruit, while others will continue giving bitter fruit. This is the passing of experience for me.”
In 1997, Flora says goodbye to her beloved Julio Antonio in a street in Bogotá and they agree to meet three hours later at home, but she never sees him again because that same afternoon he was kidnapped and disappeared forever in the midst of the convulsive political climate in Colombia, at the end of the 90s. Flora is a young poet. Julio worked for human rights organisations and the conservation of natural resources. For 10 years, Flora searches for him in an unsuccessful pilgrimage throughout Colombia, while immersed in the writing of a book of verses as a testimony of her insatiable pursuit for the lost love.

Mi compañía Teatro was founded by Mérida Urquía in 2012 in Bogotá, as a framework to produce her own performances and a structure to work with young actors and students. Mérida founded the group after she left Ensambaje Teatro to establish of her own independence as an artist.

Mérida Urquía is an actress, pedagogue, director and cultural manager born and raised in Cuba and based in Colombia since 1994. She is the director of the La Flor del Actor Theatre Festival, founded in Bogotá in 2018. Mérida started as an actress in 1986 in the Teatro Universitario de la Habana. In 1988, she founded in Cuba, together with other artists, the Teatro a Cuestas. From 1996 to 2012 she was actress in the Ensamblaje Teatro de Colombia, and now directs Mi Compañía Teatro in Bogotá. She has toured the solo performance La extranjera to many different countries.

In 1997, Flora says goodbye to her beloved Julio Antonio in a street in Bogotá and they agree to meet three hours later at home, but she never sees him again because that same afternoon he was kidnapped and disappeared forever in the midst of the convulsive political climate in Colombia, at the end of the 90s. Flora is a young poet. Julio worked for human rights organisations and the conservation of natural resources. For 10 years, Flora searches for him in an unsuccessful pilgrimage throughout Colombia, while immersed in the writing of a book of verses as a testimony of her insatiable pursuit for the lost love.

What I Did Not Say is a multidisciplinary performance, about the violence and gender problematics that women face since they are born in relation to their body, education, sexual abuse, insecurity and the social obligation of being pretty, quiet, smiling, productive and perfect. The first structure was created in residence at Théâtre Artephilein Avignon and at Dom Teatro in Chile.
Three sisters - an actress, a guitarist and a doll - are in a room with a chessboard floor. They tell each other stories of their mothers and grandmothers, dear women but “anonymous” women. The sisters’ smiles are naive and dangerous. They laugh of Bluebeard and dedicate their music, songs and dances to Susana Chavez, the Mexican journalist who coined the phrase “not one more dead woman” and fought for the rights of those women who have just become statistics.

Paola Luna Vellucci is a multimedia artist who explores the relationship between the physical body and images in movement through performance, video and art installation. One of the creators of the film production company Studoline Filmes (Rio de Janeiro), she started in the '80s to do experiments with video-art. Since then, she has made ecological documentaries, short-films and, through her theatre performances, she continues her experimentations in various artistic languages. In 2015 and in 2018 Paola was one of the organisers of Multicidade, a Magdalena Project event in Rio de Janeiro.

Paola Luna writes: “From urgency, the act, action and rebellion were born. It is a cry against violence, abuse, war... A poetic cry that redeems the sacredness of mother earth, that transfers compassion. Poetry provokes dreams, meditation, thought... The protagonist is a world of war, violence, exploration, intolerance, indifference... I want to hold compassion in my hands and then throw it in the air around me.”

Grito Poético is a performance that brings together the projection of photographic images in sequence with a stage intervention by the performer Paola Luna in seek of a physical language that comes close to the essential of life with all its contradictions. For this performance Paola has collaborated with Maria Pace Chiavari, a photographer and architecture and urbanism researcher, and with Emílie Sugai, a Butoh dancer.

Keiin Yoshimura is a performer, choreographer and artistic director of Kamigata-mai Dance Studio in Tokyo, Japan, representative of Kamigatamai Tomonokai. Keiin started to practice both Japanese traditional Kabuki dance and western classical piano playing at 5 years old. In 1974, she graduated from the Musashino University of Music. She has practiced Kamigata-mai with Yukio Yoshimura and Kisho Yoshimura, Noh Theatre with Hideo Kanze and Izumi Mikawa, and the traditional martial arts Kendo and Kyudo.

About Kamigata-mai

Kamigata-mai was born and developed in the Kamigata (Kyoto-Osaka) region of Japan in the 16th century. It was based on the dance tradition of Noh and Kyogen, taking some elements from the puppet movements of Bunraku. Typically, Noh, Kyogen and Bunraku are performed by men, while the dances of Kamigata-mai are mainly performed by women.

MRS BLISTER CHANGES BOOTS

16 June - 21:30
Transmission is the theme of the piece which talks about time passing. The length of a life in a time immemorial. A young body and one which is ageing adapt to each other so as to embrace their differences and make them into a positive force. Aeterna brings to light the mother-daughter relationship, like a laboratory for exploring the give and take, the exchanges between generations. By devising together, creating, exchanging, allows them to counter a world of individualism and consumption. Starting from imaginary female rituals, Aeterna deals for the most part with the real transmission of an archaic image of the feminine which crosses generations and which sometimes escapes those men who come across it. Aeterna is a celebration of the living, an ode to tenderness and the subtle and imperishable attachment of a mother and her daughter in fiction as in real life.

Théâtre du Mouvement was founded in 1975 by Claire Heggen and Yves Marc, in search of a theatricality of movement and gesture in the context of contemporary mime and the art of the actor. The company places itself on the border of dramatic dance, object theatre and text theatre in which the body is engaged. The group has produced well over thirty different stage productions, played in sixty countries.

Claire Heggen is an author, actress, director and teacher. She gives many workshops and teaches in international schools in France and abroad (the universities of Paris III and VIII, conservatories of Dramatic Art, The High School of Dramatic Art of the City of Paris (Ecole Supérieure d’Art Dramatique de la Ville de Paris), the Theatre Institute of Barcelona, and the International Workshop Festival, London). At the invitation of Margareta Niculescu, in 1998, she was offered a course at ESNAM where she develops her practical research which is based on the relation between body and object (mask, materials, puppets) and is part of the pedagogical council. She received a Prize from the International Institute of Marionette for her teaching in 2015.

Elsa Marquet Lienhart is a flautist and movement actress. A graduate of the Amsterdam Conservatory in flute (speciality pedagogy), she teaches since the start of 2013 at Arte Musici. She performs in France and abroad, including orchestras such as the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra. An active participant in the world of contemporary music, she works with composers in various settings (Cabaret Contemporain, Théâtre du Mouvement, Théâtre du Sarment).

Ruins of time - The Imaginary Meeting of Anna Banti and Artemisia Gentileschi is inspired by the historiography on the Italian painter Artemisia Gentileschi (1593-1653) and the novel about her, written by Anna Banti in 1944, during the Second World War in a bombed and ruined Florence. The fame of the baroque painter Artemisia Gentileschi is due to her ability to deal with an artistic career reserved only for men, managing to succeed despite many obstacles, including a trial for rape of which she was a victim at 17 years old. Anna Banti was at first an art critic and then became a writer of novels.

In the performance, three women meet amongst the ruins produced by time: Anna Banti, Artemisia Gentileschi and a contemporary lecturer. The lecturer explains about Anna Banti and her novel, and gives information concerning Artemisia Gentileschi’s life while she battles with time rushing by and with history’s categories. Anna Banti speaks through the words of the novel to have a dialogue with Artemisia Gentileschi in a time of war and destruction. Artemisia Gentileschi talks about painting, colours and the meaning of art. One of the scenes presents the acts of the trial for rape, during which Artemisia was tortured to assure she was speaking the truth.

Teresa Ruggeri is an Italian actress who has studied gymnastics, visual art and photography, and has worked in art galleries as art critic and photographer. Today she works as a clown, butoh dancer, acrobat and stilt walker. She has trained with different masters and especially with Julia Varley of Odin Teatret. As an actress she is interested in a poetic-dramaturgic construction of the text and in working with improvisation, activating imagination and presence.

A woman across borders

In an ancestral space, a young woman relives the stories and memories of her mother, grandmother and great-grandmother in their resilience, choices and heritage. At the same time, she is trespassing cultures. Her black female body is a constant embodiment and she is challenged to break through old patterns and cultural borders to start to build her own story. The original idea was to talk about borders, language, the female body and the black heritage. Barbara Carvalho and Luciana Martuchelli are two women of Afro-Brazilian descent who received the Orixa culture through their families and who found barriers in their artistic and personal lives. Barbara as “black woman” and Luciana as “white woman” are searching for a diverse dialogue in order to break their geographic, emotional and aesthetic borders. Through the partnership between their groups, antagon theaterAKTion and Cia Yinspiração, the first scene started to appear during The Secret Art of The Performer, in 2014. This work in progress will be shared for the first time!

BÁRBARA CARVALHO
(Brazil/Germany)

Bárbara Carvalho is an actress, performer, producer and teacher for theater and dance. Since 2010 she works in Frankfurt am Main as a member of the collective antagon theaterAKTion and coordinator of Escuna Criativa, international socio-cultural project. She is graduated in Theater at the Federal University of Bahia in Brazil, and in 2017 she started to direct and curate the International Women’s Theater Festival in Frankfurt. Since 2018, she has been studying M.A. Choreography and performance at the Institute of Applied Theater Studies in Giessen.

Luciana Martuchelli is an actress, director, composer and film maker. She is graduated in Interpretation and direction at Instituto Superior de Arte, in Havana; at the Fashion Institute of Design & Merchandising, in California; and at Faculdade de Artes Dulcina de Moraes, in Brazil, where she also became professor of interpretation and multimedia communication. In 2008 she created The Secret Art of the Performer, an annual masters-in-residence with Eugenio Barba and Julia Varley. Luciana is also the director and is the curator of Solos Férteis - International Festival of Women in Theatre in Brazil.

Tapete Manifesto is a performative action conceived and directed by Thaís Medeiros. It reflects on the theme of violence against women as well as the massification and vulgarisation of death in current times. It is a symbolic procession, a poetic performing manifesto against the tragic tradition of women’s murders in Brazil, inspired by the devotion carpets which are made during the religious festivities of Corpus Christi in Brazil. Tapete Manifesto is a poetic ritual, an attempt to make the lives of women who were violated and murdered sacred, creating a new reality while the piece is being created in the performative space. It is a rite of transformation of violence into poetry for woman’s empowerment. Its dramaturgy was developed based on statistics, pieces of news and the participants’ personal testimonies.

A woman, a black fabric, a chair...
She leaned to the left
Oppositions and expositions, feet, hands on the floor
Bones, bones, bones, 3 X bones
Bare feet, face under the sun, feet
Even when the sun dies, she shall hear her bones

A performance installation by Thais Medeiros that deals poetically with existential topics such as life and death, and the to be or not to be in current times. The piece is inspired by Shakespeare’s characters Hamlet and Ophelia, and by poems and personal experiences that refer to the same themes. It is a performing experiment that aims at a dialogue, an entwining between theatrical poetry and visual arts.

Gabriella Sacco is a poet, performer, director and translator. She is co-creator with Annamaria Talone of the Magdalena events in Italy called MagFest. After being engaged in theatre for ten years, she left it to dedicate herself to her studies of the culture of ancient India. Since her interest for theatre has returned, Gabriella has created performances and acts based on poetry and myths working with directors such as Mamadou Diaume, Julia Varley and Peter Clough. Gabriella conducts workshops on the shaping of performative ideas both for individuals or groups. Presently Gabriella is living in Amsterdam.

TALE 53; SNOWHITE

Tale 53; Snowhite is a sinister story told inside an intriguing wooden artefact that houses a toy theatre (with two-dimensional painted puppets moving on tracks), objects, a butai (for backdrop changes) and a cranky or moving panorama. It is based on Snowhite, the creation of the renown Spanish author and illustrator Ana Juan. Far from the disneyesque version of Snow White, our tale relates the life of a young woman who falls prey to a blood-thirsty stepmother, a hostile city, hustling dwarves and a rapacious prince. Based on the original story Tale 53 (The Little Snow White) of the Grimm Brothers published in 1812, the story of Ana Juan offers a biting and pertinent stare at the situation of women still relevant to our times.

O Poste Soluções Luminosas

was founded in 2004 as a light design company. In 2008, it created the performance Cordel do Amor sem Fim, by Claudia Barral, and became a group of artistic production and research based on anthropological references and physical theatre. The group combines an African origin and its ancestral physicality and vocal qualities with contemporary theatre, making a parallel between the embodiment of the orixás in the Afro-Brazilian ceremonial space and the processes of Michael Chekhov, Vsevolod Meyerhold, Eugenio Barba and Jerzy Grotowski. The members of the group are Naná Sodré, Agrinez Melo and Samuel Santos.
Naná Sodré embodies a 48-year-old black, anonymous and invisible married woman with children, who lives in a situation of total abandonment and emotional dependence. The character spends most of her time in the kitchen tempering her illusions with salt, garlic and coriander with spring onion, even in wild moments. In the performance while she prepares a dinner and tells about her life, she decides to mix some particular herbs which will have a special effect on her husband when he eats it.

Naná Sodré is an actress, director, cultural producer and teacher of Performing Arts, formed by UFPE, an institution in which she was also a teacher in the years 2008 and 2009. In 2004, she co-founded the group O Poste, an artistic group focused on researching African roots and the visibility of black people in art and in life. In 2011, she won the Best Actress award for the show Cordel do Amor Sem Fim from the Festival Janeiro de Grandes Espetáculos. In 2013, she won the award for supporting actress for Anjo Negro. In 2015, Naná got nominated for best actress for the solo The Recipe and O Poste won an award for best research in African roots for the production Ombela.

Samuel Santos is from Recife and has worked in theatre for 27 years. He is a theatre director, playwright, actor, producer and teacher working with O Poste Soluções Luminosas.

I was not born in a place, but in a story. We all come from a story told to us, we are told and told... And so, we build on each other. I was not born in a place, I come from this story...

Passage is a one-woman show about walking the path of memories of poorly told stories and hidden histories. About perceiving where the concrete and allegorical chains are lodged which perpetuate the imprisonment of the colonised body that shelters a subjugated soul. It is about recognising and facing the cuffs present in the subjectivity of avoiding the full experience of your being. Ultimately, it is about going through the colonised body to discover and liberate the political body.

This production of Bárbara Santos explores the conversion of the scenic body into a political body. The work incorporates elements of the ancestral and contemporary black dances and the creative paths of sound and rhythm from the Aesthetics of the Oppressed through a feminist perspective.
The performance aims to give a stage form to the question of violence against women. During the process of rehearsal, the actors and director gave up using the data which is always taken for granted, and instead searched for the topic’s radical and abysmal point of view in small gestures and in silence. The words, collected here and there from direct sources, had to reconcile, with respect and gratitude, the heavy testimonials with the breath of humanity still left in them. The performance navigates on the border between kindness and violence, tenderness and pain, without distinguishing one from the other. Presenting humiliation, solitude, suffering, one can only remain in silence and this, perhaps, is the heaviest burden to bear.

Camilla Parini started working with Teatro delle Radici in 2004, taking part in different performances and tours. Camilla graduated in 2007 as a social worker and in 2012 at the Scuola Paolo Grassi in Milan; she started her company Collettivo Ingwer in 2013, working as director and performance devisor. In 2018, Collettivo Ingwer merged with two other young artistic realities (Azimut and Até Teatro), thus becoming Collettivo Treppenwitz.

Ornella Maspoli began her theatre activity in 1994 at the University of Zurich. She followed part of the training with the theatrical cooperative Quelli di Grock of Milan from 1997 to 2002 with tours in Italy, France and Germany. Since 2000, she has trained at the Teatro delle Radici with which she regularly collaborates. She takes part in several international workshops and is part of “Teatro delle Radici’s performances, Stranieri, Guardando al Sud and Petali.”

Contadores de Mentira was established in Suzano, a city close to São Paulo, in 1995. In 2012, the group opened a theatre space under the same name. Contadores de Mentira produces projects, performances, festivals, meetings and a dialogue of survival and development between the local inhabitants and cultural activities. Focusing on a group structure, Contadores de Mentira tells stories through images, memories, food, smells, with references to traditional Brazilian rituals and dances.
Cícera is a performance that portrays the trajectory of a black woman, who leaves the Northeast region of Brazil where she was born, to move to the big city of São Paulo in search of a better life. In her bag, she carries a handful of manioc flour, four daughters and many dreams. In São Paulo, she finds harshness, cement, hunger and longing. Cícera is the story of a mother and the portrait of the lives of hundreds of strong women who abandon their roots in search of better conditions. Cícera is an evocation of the women who live inside of us; the ones who, even though unknown, create traces and paths we can follow and who never let us forget how strong are the bonds between us all.

Rito de Partilha

In this demonstration Daniele Santana shares basic elements of the construction of some of the characters she has created during her trajectory with Contadores de Mentira. She invites the spectators into the intimate space of creation and physical exploration of a character. She also presents examples of the group research on the “actor-brincante”, which uses Brazilian popular culture, its dances and rhythms, to create a physical training and construct a “broken” body that pulsates and dances, first on the inside and then on the outside, in the form of actions, intentions and metaphors.

Daniele Santana is an actress, activist and cultural manager. She has worked with the group Contadores de Mentira since 2004, developing theoretical and practical research on Anthropological Theatre, with emphasis on the concepts of “Metaphor, rite and celebration”, which is the group’s basis of research, and participating in the group’s productions.

Cleiton Pereira is the founder of Contadores de Mentira, and works as actor, director and producer within the group. His studies include Kathakali dance, music training and theatre anthropology workshops.

Violeta Luna is a performance artist/activist. Her work explores the relationship between theatre, performance art and community engagement. Working within a multidimensional space that allows for the crossing of aesthetic and conceptual borders, Violeta uses her body as a territory to question and comment on social and political phenomena. Born in Mexico City, Violeta obtained her graduate degree in acting from the Centro Universitario de Teatro (CUNAM) and La Casa del Teatro. While working as a solo performer, she is also an associate artist of the San Francisco-based performance collectives La Pocha Nostra and Secos & Mojados.

FOR THOSE WHO ARE NO MORE

Performer: Violeta Luna
Concept: Violeta Luna and Coletivo Rubro Obsceno (Stela Fisher, Leticia Olivares)
Music: David Molina
Video: Roderick Steel
Duration: 45 min.
Performed in Spanish

For those who are no longer is a performance/memorial dedicated to women who were and are still being killed in Latin America. It is the result of a collaboration between Violeta Luna (Mexico/USA) and the Coletivo Rubro Obsceno (Brazil). The performance decryes the violence, impunity and oblivion, and ritualises the need for solidarity and action against feminicide.
Maria Porter is an actor, director and teacher. She has performed in the United States and internationally, with such companies as Teatro delle Radici, where she appeared as Lady Macbeth in Shakespearean. Maria is a master teacher of the Suzuki Method and has given work demonstrations and master-classes in Wales, Denmark, England, Cuba, Peru, Greece, Spain and Switzerland. She has directed ensemble-based performances featured in festivals in Italy, Canada, Prague, New York and Scotland. Her solo performances, Enabling Nonna and The Space Inside have been featured in festivals in Europe and the United States. Maria is on the faculty of Long Island University, Post where she serves as Director of Theatre.
My Silence, My Voice is a performance that searches for the unarticulated, the unsaid, the muted, the shameful, the ugly, the guilty, the hidden voices, stories and memories. How can one find a balance between letting things behind in order to live more freely now and being true to the feeling that you must go back to find what was neglected - by others and yourself - in order to own your own story? And do we really own our own story? Maybe all stories are connected in a huge pattern. The performer explores her own story and voice as an artist and as a woman with a human story of exclusion, loss, insistence and hope. For Katrine Faber this performance is the story about sticking your hands into that dirty muddy stinking dark water and searching for what has been lost. Dragging it out of the deep water and finding it again.

Teater Viva was founded by Katrine Faber in 2006 in Denmark. Teater Viva performs for children, youngsters and adults in Denmark and abroad, and explores the interaction between performer and public, space and body, silence and sound. The performances of Teater Viva are characterised by the meeting of expressive physicality and the use of the human voice in all possible and impossible ways.

Katrine Faber was born in 1963. She is an actress, storyteller, singer, composer and director, and has performed in as different places of the world as Mexico, Nepal, Spain, Tuva in Central Asia, Uzbekistan and isolated places in the North of Scandinavia. She studied with the Istituto di Arte Scenica in Italy and with Roy Hart Theatre in France and with Nadine George in London. In the last twenty-five years she has worked with different forms of theatre with a special focus on voice work.
The art of silence in front of a starry sky,
Only the flower and the insect know it.

The art of singing for singing,
Only rustling forests and sea waters know it.

The deep silence of life on earth
It is the rose that teaches us, the rose opened on the bush.

(Federico Garcia Lorca, The Silver Poplars, 1919)

Like the destiny of a rose, the new performance by Eléonore Bovon and Brigitte Cirla gently unwinds a collection of love songs, ranging from traditional music (Georgia, Bulgaria, Italy...), to French songs (Françoise Hardy, Edith Piaf...), and contemporary tunes. The timbre of the violin and of the Indian harmonium, and the sounds of different languages, give form to a performance rooted in world music vocal techniques and in the endless pleasure of polyphonic singing. The longing for love and poetic metaphors are explored through various composers and authors: Federico Garcia Lorca, Mahmoud Darwich, Fernando Pessoa, Nizar Qabbani, Ariel Ramirez, Philippe Sarde, Henry Purcell...

Voix Polyphoniques was created in 1991 by Brigitte Cirla. Since 1996 the company resides in La Friche Belle de Mai in Marseille, France. The company has created, produced and toured about thirty different musical theatre performances. Voix Polyphoniques also participates in different European projects and leads choirs.

Brigitte Cirla began her career as a singer and actress after an education in classical piano. As a teacher and choir director, Brigitte has led numerous workshops for amateurs and professionals in France and Europe, she dedicates herself to a continuous musical research on a cappella traditional polyphonic singing and contemporary compositions for voice. Brigitte writes most of the performances of her company in collaboration with composers and recently has been working for musical performances for open air spaces. She is a founding member of The Magdalena Project.

Éléonore Bovon completed her music studies in violin, musicology, singing and composition. After meeting Giovanna Marini, she began her career as a singer and started the vocal quartet Sanacore touring concerts in France and in Europe. In 2010 her solo album L’amour dans tous ses états is released and since 2013 she tours different productions of her own songs. Éléonore also works as composer, playwright, voice coach and choir director.

Carl Friedman tells the story of a family with three adolescent children for whom World War Two still prevails, because “Father has camp”. This linguistic twist helps the children to understand the inconceivable and to explain to the outside world what Father has “brought home” from his imprisonment at the concentration camp.

Theater Unikate is Gilla Cremer’s company with which she performs at international festivals, in municipal theatres, on studio stages, in cabarets and schools. The plays are generally flexible in terms of stage technology and can be performed in intimate spaces as well as on large stages in theatres with seating for up to one thousand people. To date, Theater Unikate’s repertory includes thirteen productions and several readings. In four of her plays Gilla is accompanied by musicians.

Gilla Cremer was born in 1956. She is a free-lanced actress living in Hamburg. In 1987 she began to produce solo performances, women’s monologues, establishing her reputation as an actress and authoress outside German speaking countries. Gilla runs her solo theatre company on her own. She received the Rolf Mares Special Award for lasting and exceptional achievements in Hamburg’s world of theatre and the Inthega-special award for her impressing work.

Jana Korb is an artist, aerialist, and cultural scientist. She creates and produces aerial theatre and narrative circus, mainly producing performances in public spaces. Jana Korb’s personal style is largely influenced by Czech experimental theatre and its strong tradition of object theatre. As a creator and researcher, she is searching for a circus of the future. Her artistic research leads her to special, forgotten women. She is artistic director of the Luftartistik Festspiele Berlin (Aerial Arts Festival Berlin), co-founder of RAW cultural space (Berlin), and now the first chair of the German Association for Theatre in Public Spaces. She lives and works as part of the collective Korb+Stiefel in Berlin Lichtenberg.

Phyla is a musical ensemble with Jennie Zimmermann and Gisbert Schürig, two musicians who combine minimal music and improvisation to create soundscapes of poetic fragility and archaic impact. www.phyla.info

The aerial dance and new music performance, which premiered in 2017 on Luther’s Oak in Eberswalde, is a homage to Marguerite Porete - a radical anarchist Beguine poet of the 13th century, burnt in 1310 shortly after her widely read book was likewise burnt by the Inquisition. It presents an interpretation of Marguerite Porete’s The Mirror of the Simple Souls: a dialogue between soul, reason, love, and morality, dissecting her thoughts into fragments and weaving text, sound, and voice fragments into minimal music. A tree is at the centre: a path for voices, sound, and aerial dance.

We are foreigners in our own countries. How can we find ourselves? We are in a search of a language through which we can possibly recognise ourselves; through which we can say what we could not scream.

Magdalena 2nd Generation is a Latin American network of women who are in direct or indirect relation to artistic work, that organises workshops, festivals, community events and performances.

Magdalena 3rd Generation is an international network connected to The Magdalena Project. It functions as an international collaboration group without a physical base that aims at organising meetings in different places in the world.

Natalia Tesone (Argentina) is an actress, teacher and theatrical interpreter of Argentine Sign Language (LSA). Currently she is a teacher at the school Teatro Taller del Ángel, coordinating workshops, seminars and physical training. She has been a member of Magdalena 2nd Generation for 20 years, organising festivals and meetings, and is part of the company Artes Y Señas since 2008.

Luiza Bitencourt (Brazil) is an actress, teacher and storyteller. Founder member of the Cia na Ponta da Língua in Juníniai, near São Paulo, in 2008, a group with which Luiza makes oral narrative research. She was part of the association “Estação Juventude” as a theatre instructor for children in 2008 and 2009. In 2012, Luiza meets Ana Woolf and since 2016 she works in municipal libraries to stimulate reading with storytelling performances.
Mare Serenitatis

Mare Serenitatis means “sea of serenity” in Latin; it is the name given to one of the biggest lunar seas. The starting point for the performance was Luciana Martuchelli's process of losing and finding her voice again. In the beginning she only wanted to make a concert to sing the songs she had composed. The performance has grown into a meeting of music, words, silence and images that constructs a woman's identity diving into references of feminine pre-verbal legends. The performance presents the mythical universe of mermaids that evokes metaphors around the multiple meanings of women's voices and silences. It is a cartography exposing a territory of sacrifices done in the name of love.

Cia. YinsPiração was created by Luciana Martuchelli in 2002, focusing on actor's training, and on the worldwide myths and questioning of women's voices as well as the myths about masculinity. The company has produced the following performances: The Tightrope Walker (2015), Fahrenheit (2015), Shakespeare's Dreams (2014), The Big Heart & Eros (2014), Ars - The Thousand Naked Leaves of Poems (2012) and Elizabeth Can Everything (2011), Medea - Furious Gia (2007), The Blank Page (2006), The Tightrope Walker (2015), among others.

Following the adaptation of Frederika Amalia Finkelstein’s novel Oblivion, the performance is based on Compagnie Libre Cours’ reflections on the duty of remembering. Frederika Amalia Finkelstein is a French author, born in 1991, and her first novel, L’oubli received nomination for the Renaudot, Décembre and de Flore Prizes. After meeting Frederika Amalia Finkelstein, Julie Benegmos tells the story of her own family, and of her grandparents’ escape from Auschwitz. Through short anecdotes, she gradually gives spectators an intimate portrait of the memory of the Holocaust in daily life.

Founded in 1997 by a collective of actors, scenographers and musicians, Théâtre de La Remise is committed to theatre research, marked by the actors’ work and stage presence. After producing many performances, the obsession of the company is still to present the individuals facing every-day and society with their destructive impulses, abyssal fragility and unsuspected resources. From the first performance without text, inspired by a poem by Cesare Pavese, the company now works with novel adaptations, even though the main focus is on the stage rendition. Compagnie Libre Cours was created by Julie Benegmos, author and director living in Montpellier, France. L’oubli was the first monologue staged by the company with the support of the author of the novel.

Julie Benegmos is a theatre and film director. In 2018, she decided to create After Oblivion. The origin of this project is an intimate family story that she wanted to narrate directly on stage. To do this, she decided to collaborate with stage director Marion Coutarel, to receive help in sharing this intimate life story that questions the role of Memory in our contemporary society.

Marion Coutarel is actress and director of Théâtre de la Remise and creates performances with people with mental and psychic disabilities. Marion was Associated artist with La Bulle Bleue. In September 2015, with Théâtre de la Remise, Marion organised the first Magdalena event in France bringing together a hundred artists from twenty countries and is preparing the second festival for September 2019.
Rapture is the transportation, physically, forcefully, spiritually or emotionally, from one place to another. It is not only descriptive of emotional transport; it has a visceral and urgent quality, linked to the word Raptor, from Raptes (a sudden violent attack). In Moira Finucane’s studies of devotional art, liberation theology, collaborations with cultural activists and human rights leaders, and discussions with audiences, this idea of art as a portal to rapture, to being transported, opening up possibilities in every direction, art that is not safe, that is unpredictable, powerful, life changing, not prescriptive, not dictatorial, that is in every way transporting, is now fundamental to her understanding of art that is transcendent. Over many years Moira Finucane came to believe that art can change culture and change lives, that change exists in the realm of the imagination, that an image of freedom love joy oppression is extremely powerful and can seduce people through cultural and political barriers.

FINUCANE & SMITH UNLIMITED

(Australia)

Finucane & Smith Unlimited is an Australian-based performance company globally acclaimed for their provocative, entertaining, razorsharp and visually intricate productions. From cabaret to drama, to richly detailed immersive carnivals, cross-artform collaborations and gallery installations, Finucane & Smith’s work mines an astonishing diversity of artforms to create indelible visions and provocations of humanity. Finucane & Smith have won critical acclaim in thirteen languages and fifteen theatre awards.

Moira Finucane is an Australian artist who has been described by critics as ‘the volcanic physical presence’, ‘mesmerising’, and as a ‘national treasure’. In 2016, she became the first Creative Fellow of the National Gallery of Victoria, working with the most significant visual art collection in the region. After studying environmental science, Moira Finucane became an active member of the women’s, peace and conservation movements. She started performing in queer and underground nightclubs when she was 28, creating a body of work that was completely unique, and that began her idiosyncratic artform - melding old style entertainment genres into indelible visions of humanity, liberation, gender, violence, desire and power.

Teater Fusentast was established in 1989. It is based in Trondheim, Norway, as a touring theatre group, with visual pieces for children and youths and adults, often using puppets, music, sound, and text, performing in Norway and abroad. Teater Fusentast is run by Jaap den Hertog and Coby Omvlee, with Randi Størseth as co-producer.

Coby Omvlee is an actress and visual artist. She writes, makes puppets, gives workshops and organises theatre projects for Teater Fusentast, mainly performing for young audiences. Her performances cover a wide range from social/political relevance to the plain silly, but always with a surprising outlook at the wonders of the world.

Stayer is a humorous documentary performance based on Coby Omvlee’s own experiences as a long-term patient in a Norwegian hospital and other care-institutes. After accidents both in and outside hospital, Coby asked herself how it is that nurses organise influence employees and the safety of patients? What is the cause of an extreme pressure to discharge patients, and is it in the patients’ interest? Is out-sourcing a good way to run a hospital?

Stayer is a personal analysis of Coby’s own path back to life and her resilience, as well as her questioning of today’s healthcare system, its commercialisation and the dehumanisation of Public Health Care in Norway.
In this storytelling, Parvathy depicts the life and songs of Nanibala Dashi, Phulmala Dashi and Chintamoni, three Baul practitioners belonging to past generations. Parvathy will use stories connected to their time. The simple and humble life of these great female masters was filled with obstacles that finally transforms into sweet wisdom, giving the abundance of joy and fulfilment of living Baul Dharma, beyond all kinds of discrimination. Every moment of their lives leaves us with a great inner reflection full of inspiration and makes us realise the value of their teaching.

Parvathy Baul is a singer, painter and storyteller from West Bengal. After receiving her initial music and dance training during her childhood, she studied visual arts at the Kala Bhavan at Shantiniketan, the university founded by Rabindranath Tagore. Her meeting with the living tradition of Baul prompted her to choose the path of self-training in the Baul order rather than an institutional degree. Since 1995 she has performed in her home state Bengal and all over India and in several international festivals, including Transit 5, 6 and 7. Parvathy Baul has organised three women theatre festivals in India, Tantidhatri, in connection with The Magdalena Project. The festivals took place in 2012, 2016 and 2019. Parvathy Baul is participating in Odin Teatret’s performance The Tree.

Aluminum Songs is a theatre concert that transits on the borderline between Kurt Weil, old honourable workers’ songs and fragile chuckling pop music. Theatre composer Guttorm Guttormsen put music the lyrics written by Geddy Aniksdal, respecting the core of the text and highlighting their essence. In Aluminum Songs, melody lines are intertwined into dialogues, together and in contrast with the text universe. Musical solutions bind songs together seamlessly, only interrupted by - or perhaps in addition to - spiked short middle texts and anecdotes.

GRENLAND FRITEATER was founded in 1976 in Porsgrunn, Norway. It is an independent theatre group that produces very big outdoor performances locally and numerous smaller shows for tours in Norway and abroad. Since 1995, Grenland Friteater organises each year PIT, Porsgrunn International Theatre Festival, and since 2005 Sense of Place, a project during which the whole town is put on stage in collaboration with visual artists, musicians, actors and local groups.
